Business Men
Should Not Pose as Directors of Concerns of Unknown
Antecedents

TOGETHER too many Glendale business men have been permitting their names to be used as directors of projected enterprises without accepting the responsibility that should go with the position.

No man who has any regard for his standing in the community should allow his name to go before the public as a director until he has assured himself of the soundness of the business being promoted.

WE BELIEVE that a great many worth-while enterprises have failed to receive public support just because some of our business men have in the past accepted without any hesitation every directorate offered them.

A man who invests his money in a business does so on his own responsibility and with his eyes open. If he loses he can blame himself only. But the individual who goes before the investing public as a director accepts a responsibility which should not be taken lightly. This state of affairs has been brought to our mind forcibly during the past two years through the fact that at least six projects which were promoted in Glendale with a list of local directors failed to materialize and in most of the cases the creditors lost all that was due them.

JUST a few days ago, we had an interesting experience along this line. We had a bill against an organization which was supposedly substantial in every way. Its credit with us, however, was based on the fact that several Glendale men were directors of the organization. This concern, however, failed to make any headway in the placing of stock in Glendale and decided to withdraw. When this knowledge came to us we telephoned one of the local directors and asked him what he could tell us about the organization. His reply was that he knew nothing about it. Our further investigation brought out the information that the only visible asset of the company in Glendale was one desk. True, other expensive desks were in the office, but as they had not been paid for, the company that furnished them took them back.

THE INVESTING citizens of Glendale in the future would do well to look closely into any stock selling proposition for themselves and not place too much trust in the fact that some local men are on the directorate, unless they are pretty well acquainted with them personally.

MAYOR ROBINSON SENDS CHECKS TO BEREFT WIDOWS

First Installments of Big Testimonial Fund
Dispatched

Mayor Spencer Robinson of the relief committee for families of Clarence Edwards and Joseph W. McHahan, victims of the Verdugo hills fire, made glad the hearts of beneficiaries by sending as the first installments of the fund, two checks, one for $1831.45 to Mrs. Edwards including contributions especially designated for her, and a check to Mrs. McGahan for $1781.45. This does not include the money realized from the benefit entertainment at the Tuesday Afternoon club, the proceeds of which including the sale of programs were in the neighborhood of $4200. Mayor Robinson stated that other donations to banks of the city had not been checked up nor funds that might be in the custody of the Chamber of Commerce.

The checks were most gratefully received by the two women, who appreciate the spirit in which the money has been given as much as the fund itself. One hundred dollars had been previously given to Mrs. McGahan direct through the Welfare department of the Tuesday Afternoon club.

VISITOR TO GLENDALE TELLS FISH STORIES

Trout as big as whales jump right out of the brook on to the breakfast table in Montana. This "fish story" was related this morning by George L. Delgado who had to stay away from Glendale for six months in order to become proficient in the narration of such "whoppers."

DAILY PRESS CIRCULATION WINS EXCLUSIVE ADS

These days it seems records are made to be broken. At least Mr. Albright, manager of the T. D. & L. theater here, has demonstrated this saying, for he has broken the record each week for attendance during the past three successive weeks, and the crowds are getting larger all the time at this popular playhouse, all of which demonstrates that he is on the job. Last Sunday was also the fourth record breaker for Sunday attendance at the T. D. & L.

With its nearly 8000 paid subscribers the Glendale Daily Press so thoroughly covers the field that the T. D. & L. some time ago decided to advertise exclusively in the Glendale Press. The same conclusion has been reached by another theater. In a recent check it was found that the Glendale Daily Press had a lead of more than five to one subscribers over the Glendale Evening News. Glendale Press circulation reaches the people and wide awake advertisers are relying more upon this fact every day and are saving money by useless duplication of their advertising.

BUSINESS WOMEN HAVE BUSY TIME AT MEETING

A meeting of the cabinet of the Business and Professional Women's club was held Tuesday evening at the pretty home of Miss Lillian Meddick, 245 Dayton court, at 6:30; and a delicious supper to which each member contributed something, was served.

The treasurer, Mrs. Anita Anderson, reported a goodly sum in the strong box and was instructed to send a check for the payment of annual dues to the federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs.

The resignation of Miss Edna Platt as recording secretary was accepted and Mrs. Allie Burkin elected to complete her term of office.

The resignation of the president, Miss Gibbs, because of the ill health of her sister, was accepted to take effect at the next meeting and a committee of three composed of Dr. Laura Brown, Miss Myrtle Knapp and Miss Alice McCoy was appointed to consult with the resigning and report at the next meeting.

Dr. Brown reported for the committee appointed to interview officials of the Tuesday Afternoon club relative to the formation of a Business Women's section by members who also belong to the Business Women's club, that the Redlands Women's club has affiliations with the Business Women's club of that city and had been asked to furnish information to the Tuesday club board, which had not yet been received. The committee was asked to continue its investigations along this line, also relative to securing a course of lectures on the Bible by Winifred Rouse, who is to conduct such a course for the Tuesday club. The question of making arrangements for a meeting place where supper could be served previous to the lecture was also discussed and referred to the committee and tentative plans for the possible establishment of another club home which would serve as social headquarters for the club, had been discussed and will probably be outlined more fully at the regular business session of the full club to be held at the home of Dr. Elizabeth Early, 225 North Isabel, the evening of November 13. In the absence of the secretary, Miss Alice McCoy acted as recording secretary and was asked to attend with her sister a presidents' conference of the county federation as the representatives of the Glendale club.

BRILLIANT STARS OF FILM LAND'S CONSTELLATION FOR SWEET CHARITY'S SAKE

Present a Program at Benefit for Fire Victims' Dependents Rarely Equalled and Surely Never Surpassed for Real Intrinsic Merit

LIONEL BELMORE MASTER OF CEREMONIES

Mayor Robinson Makes Affecting Introductory Address; Film Folk Follow With Songs, Speeches, Instrumental Selections and the Like

By ALBERT MARPLE

What shall I write? How shall I begin to tell in mere words the wonders that were seen and heard at the much-heralded fire victims' benefit program at the Tuesday Afternoon club auditorium in Glendale last night?

Whatever is said or written of that momentous occasion can only scratch the surface. To attempt to tell all would be folly—it would be impossible. Events of such extremely high character must be experienced to be really understood.

Oh, such talent! Such beauty! Such complete abandonment of self in an endeavor to help those who are suffering! Such a noble attempt to remove the burdens of those who remain, and to assist in making brighter the future of the unfortunate souls who are left to "carry on." What an unselfish attempt on the part of those who are total strangers to the stricken families to bring gladness and cheer and, in a measure, to lighten the load, to take away the sting, to smooth over the hard places. Surely the hearts of those who are left must be bursting with gratitude this day—they must be overflowing with thankfulness.

To tell, even in a feeble way, of such freely, gladly and willingly given service is at the same time difficult and a pleasure that comes not often to anyone. The program was nothing short of wonderful—the most delightful series of entertainment features ever heard in this city. Every number was a gem and every song or story, although bright and cheerful in its tone, carried a prayer of sympathy from the heart of the performer to the hearts that have so recently been overshadowed by grief.

The firmament was full of stars last night—and so was the program. Never before have the talents of the valley been privileged to see so many of their screen favorites at one time. From time to time every participant on last night's program has appeared so often that their names and their personalities, as pictured on the silver screen, are dear to the hearts of the local "movie fans."

Here is a list of those who gave of their time and talents: Louise Dresser, Clara Kimball Young, Agnes Ayres, Viola Dana, Shirley Mason, Ruth Roland, Wanda Hawley, Jacqueline Logan, Jack Gardner, Will Rogers, Milton Sills, William Desmond, George Melford, Ernest Torrence, Lew Cody, Herbert Rawlinson, Arthur Stuart Hull and little Michel Howe—an array of motion picture celebrities as is seldom seen together.

While the offerings of these motion picture performers was evidence enough of their interest in the cause and their sympathy for those who are stricken, the depth of their feeling could not be seen over the footlights. Only "back stage" were the innermost feelings of those generous hearts manifest.

"I'm so happy to be permitted to be here and take part tonight," said big-hearted "Bill" Rogers to Miss Dresser. "I'd cross the continent to appear for a cause of this kind—and for you."

Those who laughed until tears rolled down their cheeks at the capers of "Bill" little realized that over in the Rogers home in Los Angeles lies a tiny tot—Bill's precious little girl—who was hovering between life and death—that the end was expected almost hourly and that the most capable physicians to be found were working faithfully to bring about a "turn for the better." Despite this fact, "big-hearted Bill" left the bedside of the little sufferer to do his "bit" in spreading sunshine—and he surely laid it on.

Similar expressions were heard from every person who took part on the program—and every one was from the heart.

SAYS PROGRESSIVE EDITOR DESERVES HIGHEST PRAISE

By HANNAH LUELLA HUKILL

The progressive editor of the Daily Press deserves the highest commendation for the broad and prophetic vision shown in opening his columns to Dr. Goodspeed's translation from the original Greek of the New Testament. It portends much, and is very significant of the near approach of the second coming of the Great World Teacher for the daily press to give the public a recital of the life of our Lord, the Christ. In these chaotic times there is a great cry for spiritual uplift, for the world is soul hungry and longing for the Truth. It never injures Truth to throw light upon it, for it cannot be destroyed. Truth is like pure gold and it is only the dross that can be destroyed. All real spiritual leaders who have their finger on the public pulse know this to be true.

painting, France gave it poetry. Let it be the pride of America that it gave the motion picture."

Miss Ruth Roland, the "actress of hair-raising feats," then sang very sweetly a number of her favorite songs, among which was "That Old Gang of Mine," followed by an encore, "Sleep, Baby, Sleep."

Then came Will Rogers. He came out carrying that wonderful grin—and a chew of gum. That gum did not get away from him although he treated it "scandalously."

"You all got visitors in this here town tonight," said Bill. "Don't try to tell me there's this many people living here. I heard of Glendale once before tonight, I believe. The only way I could locate the place was to remember that it is here that you turn to the right to go to Pasadena. We go there once a year—to the battle of roses. We go to see flowers, but all we can find is real estate men. The only reason I knew this was Glendale was that I heard the mayor singing."

When they told me I was to speak at a woman's club the only appropriate thing I could think to talk about was scandal. Sills told you that America introduced the motion picture. There's lots of other things this country introduced—bootlegging, for instance. The only other prohibition country in the world is Turkey—that's a great gang to be linked with. It wouldn't be so bad if we had the rest of the privileges that Turkey enjoys."

Viola Dana and Shirley Mason then gave a beautiful Italian dance, accompanied by the guitar and violin music. Their offering was well received.

William Desmond, who was introduced as "a man who played the leads at the Burbank theater for so many years," came next. He told of a number of his personal experiences in the movie business, laying particular stress on a "colored optic" he received in one of the scenes.

Miss Wanda Hawley, one of the leading screen beauties, followed with several piano selections, which were well and cleverly done. She and her offering made a real hit with the audience.

Lew Cody then recounted a number of his experiences in the making of pictures and depicted a tragic scene in an imaginary play. His work was extremely clever.

Ernest Torrence next rendered an original Russian ballad and responded with a beautiful encore. Mr. Torrence is a musician of unusual ability and his work called for considerable applause.

Pretty Agnes Ayres then appeared and told the people how glad she was to be there and to do her little in such a worthy cause. Jacqueline Logan appeared next and gave an operatic and a "flap" interpretation of the chorine of "Nora." Her work was extremely well done and was enthusiastically applauded.

Then came Herbert Rawlinson. You know "Herb" don't you? Those who attended last night's performance feel that they are well acquainted with him. He came to the "house" with him. He told of a number of amusing things that happened on "Brand boulevard," and cuddled a little closer to the hearts of his hearers by stating that a long time ago he lived on Lomita avenue, in Glendale. "Herb" was good—very good, in fact, and alone was worth the price of admission.

George Melford, who by old-timers will be remembered as the smiling fellow who directed the old Kalem studio in Glendale, then told in poetry form the high lights of a one-act comedy.

To say good night to her hundreds of friends in the audience, Miss Dresser came next. She thanked those present for their interest and assured them that if at any other time she could help them,

EXCHANGE CLUB HEARS SPEECH AND FINE MUSIC

H. R. Pomeroy of Planning Commission, Is Speaker of the Day

The phenomenal growth of Southern California is only a foundation for its greater development of the future, in the opinion of Mr. Pomeroy. He commented upon the fact that 185 new subdivisions have been opened up in this county during the first nine months of this year.

The assessed valuation in Los Angeles county 1918 was $100,000,000, whereas now it is over $1,919,000,000.

The increase in assessed value this year over last year in California will be $560,000,000—of which $418,000,000 is in Los Angeles county.

A short musical program was presented by the three daughters of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Sutton of 534 East Windsor road. They are known as "The Sutton Sisters."

"Marcheta" was played by Miss Lillian Sutton upon a home-made instrument made of violin strings attached to a broomstick and to a cigar box. A lid of another cigar box formed the bow. This is known to the family as a "cig-lelele."

Miss Lourilla Sutton sang "Fuzzy-Wuzzy Worm." "When Francis Dances with Me" and "You've Got to See Mama Every Night." Miss Beatrice Sutton played the accompaniment.

Roy Strasser of 611 North Brand boulevard was a guest of Peter Nelce of 133 North Brand boulevard who knew him in Toledo, Ohio. Accompanied by Mike Kaufman of Hollywood, Mr. Strasser sang "Give Me Your Smile."

All musical numbers at the luncheon were greatly applauded. Liquid libations of coca-cola were corked in half-pint vials bearing poison labels. These were placed at 133 North Brand boulevard, chairman of the house committee.

An impromptu "number" by C. C. Coghlin of 444 South San Fernando road was much applauded. This consisted of having one of these bottles broken in his coat pocket while he was collecting luncheon dues. An attempt was made by R. E. Johnston of 444 South San Fernando road to have him fined for trying to transport "wet goods" without a permit.

DEPOSITS $500 BAIL ON LIQUOR RUNNING CHARGE

Fifty gallons of wine were captured at 6:30 this morning by Officers Louis Nunn and W. W. Hendrick of the police department. A truck containing ten five-gallon glass jugs was proceeding toward Los Angeles on San Fernando road. It was halted at Los Feliz road. A Giovannazzi of 1445 Henry street, Los Angeles, the driver, this afternoon was released upon a deposit of $500 bail upon a charge of transporting liquor.

to call on her at her home on Mountain street, Glendale.

The orchestra music during the evening was furnished by the Kelly Shrine club orchestra, and Bernice Askin was very efficient at the piano as accompanist.

In the preparing and presentation of this program, Miss Dresser, Jack Gardner and faithful "Bill" Howe, proprietor of the Glendale theater are deserving of especial mention. They worked long and hard to put it over big.

The programs were sold by Hedda Hopper, Mrs. Will Lewis, Cleo Ridgeley, Peg O'Neill and Alice Hollister, all well known theatrical stars, who collected $150 for the cause.

The artistic cover page of the program was executed by F. Grayson Sayre, a popular artist. The spirit manifest in the entire affair was voiced by the following verse, which appeared on the program cover:

"Oh, Charity, O, Charity,
By God and Angels blessed;
What nobler can we on this earth
Than aid the poor distressed.

AND SO THEY WERE MARRIED, ALL IS HAPPINESS

Beautiful beyond compare was the wedding last night of Lloyd Culver and Miss Garnet Peters at Central Christian church. The large auditorium was a bower of beauty with its entwined archways of flowers and greenery forming pathways down the two main aisles. The slow march along the right aisle by ushers, bridesmaids, the tiny flower and ring bearers, then the sweet and very impressive strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin timing the marchers. The varied tints of the bridesmaids' costumes added a rich bit of coloring to the scene. Just preceding this Mrs. Floyd Mercer sang, most beautifully, "Because" and "Dawning."

As the bride met groom at the altar, Rev. C. A. Cole, present pastor of the church, made a brief statement on the origin and sacredness of the marriage relation, then Rev. J. W. Utter, a former pastor, under whose ministrations the bride and groom came into the church, performed the ceremony. Then Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Culver marched down the left aisle to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, entering the auto which conveyed them to the home of the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Peters, 209 North Orange, where a reception was held and refreshments were served. Then the happy couple departed on a honeymoon tour of several days.

The church auditorium was crowded with guests to witness the ceremony.

"The Committee of Three" Announce the Season's Most Important Theatrical Event! Mr. Guy Bates Post, "America's Great Actor" In His Greatest Success, "The Climax"

(Mason Opera House, Los Angeles)

Two Weeks, Starting Mon. Nov. 19

The Committee of Three are representatives of "America's Theater Managers' Association," selected by them to secure, at least once each season, a representative star, to be surrounded by a company of players of positive worth and appear in a play of wide appeal—this company to make a transcontinental tour under the insurance and assurance of the "Committee."

This move on the part of the theater managers assures the amusement lovers in all cities the same carefully cast and completely produced productions that have heretofore been seen only in the favored cities of America.

In his present play "The Climax," Mr. Post depicts the spark of genius that is a part of the subconscious mind of every man and woman, but lies latent in the souls of the vast multitude—Manfield had the same gift, so did Irving and Booth and Patrick Henry and Henry Ward Beecher. Shakespeare possessed it—or it possessed him—to a super degree, and when we see Guy Bates Post's tense impersonations, fidelity to natural details and his command of eloquence, he makes us know we are within the gripping reality of a new world of acting.

Master of "art"—that manifestation of emotion speaking the only language that is understood by all—irrespective of creed, nationality, sex or education—whether the expression be of the emotion of gladness, sadness, shocks or tears.

Only the standard prices of fifty cents to two dollars for Wednesday matinees and fifty cents to two dollars and fifty cents for Saturday and Thanksgiving matinees, and from fifty cents to three dollars for night performances will be charged. Mail orders will be filled in order received when accompanied by purchase price plus tax and self-addressed stamped envelope—another innovation is that only the comfortable capacity of the gallery will be sold and gallery seats can be had by mail or on personal application at the box office—in advance—the same as seats in any other part of the theater. Reservations made by phone. The first applicants will have first choice—either by mail or personally. Will only be presented in Los Angeles in Southern California.

BIBLE SECTION OF TUESDAY CLUB HEARS REV. LUTMAN

Those attending the regular meeting on Tuesday of the Bible section of the Tuesday Afternoon club, of which Mrs. Q. H. Temple is curator, enjoyed a most interesting lecture given by Rev. Lutman, noted Chautauqua speaker. He spoke on California and also of the Christian center being formed near Santa Monica, showing motion pictures in connection with the Pacific Palisades. Miss Winifred Rouse will be the speaker at the next meeting of the section.

WORLD COURT WEEK OBSERVED BY TUESDAY CLUB

Rex Goodcell, Dean Irene Myers, John Cotton, Mrs. March the Speakers

World Court week was fittingly observed at the regular meeting and luncheon on Tuesday, November 6, of the Tuesday Afternoon club and inspiring messages on this subject and better Americanism were brought by the speakers of the day, including Rex Goodcell, collector of internal revenue; Dean Irene Myers of Occidental college, and Mrs. O. W. March, vice-president of the California Federation of Women's clubs.

Covers were laid for over 100 club members and guests at the regular luncheon meeting held at 12:30 o'clock. The first speaker was Rex Goodcell, whose topic was "Taxation Without Representation," in which he brought out appalling statistics showing the negligence of the voters to get out on election day, and stated that "last May at an election in the Los Angeles district only 30.6 per cent of the registered voters cast their ballots at an election for congressman. I charge that there is something wrong with the people when they so far forget their obligation as citizens as to refuse or neglect to vote. The men or women who fail to take interest in their country's affairs and are so intent upon their own selfish purposes that they cannot stop long enough to go and vote are not patriotic citizens. What kind of representation in congress will the 70 per cent of the people who refused to vote have?"

Dean Irene Myers gave a talk on "The Permanent Court of International Justice," in which she urged this country to take its place in the councils of the nations. She concluded her talk by saying "Let us lay aside our prejudices and our politics and if possible lift the ideal of our international relations to a plane of intelligence, if we would go forward."

Mrs. Roy Ballagh, curator of the fine arts section, gave a short talk regarding the wonderful display of paintings hung in the banquet room and introduced John Cotton of Glendale, whose work is internationally known. Mr. Cotton gave a short talk on the appreciation of nature and art. Among the speakers for the next luncheon meeting of the club will be Mrs. L. M. Douglas of the Goodwill Industry and Mrs. W. S. Stevens, Los Angeles district chairman of conservation.

The regular club meeting was opened at 2:30 o'clock with the salute to the flag led by Mrs. S. C. Leppelman, followed by reading of the minutes by Mrs. Wm. Hunter, Mrs. Daniel Campbell, president, called on Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, chairman of ways and means, who urged the club members to support the big Society Circus to be given by the club on November 16 and 17. The attention of the members was called to children's book week November 11 to 15. Various announcements were made. Mrs. O. W. March of Chico was presented to the members and gave an inspiring talk on world peace. Charter day will be observed by the Tuesday Afternoon club on November 13, when there will be a special program given in addition to the talk by Miss Rouse.

The program for the afternoon was given by Maude Fenlon Bollman, soprano, with Ivy Mae Travis at piano, who presented "A Song of Life," including Dawn, Nature, Mysticism, Joy, Strife, Love, Home, Childhood, "Lest We Forget" and Victory.

GRAND VIEW READING CIRCLE'S FIRST MEETING

First meeting of the Grand View Reading circle was held Tuesday morning at the Grand View school with fourteen mothers present. Mrs. C. H. Crawford explained the work of the reading circle and gave helpful suggestions. Mrs. P. J. Wheldon was elected president and took charge of the meeting. Other officers elected were: Mrs. George Fitch, vice-president; Mrs. Howard B. Morss, secretary treasurer; Mrs. Harry A. Marple, courtesy chairman; follow up committee, Mrs. Russell G. Lamp; hospitality committee for this month, Mrs. Green and Mrs. John Felton.

Following the election talks were given by Mrs. Pinney, president of the Grand View P. T. A., Mrs. P. J. Wheldon and Mrs. J. W. Mair. Mrs. Fitch spoke on "Temper" and brought out the value of understanding the cause and how to control the child's temper. This was followed by a round table discussion on topics of general interest. Mrs. Wheldon read the first chapter of the book "Growing Up." At the close of the session refreshments were served by the hospitality committee. Regular meetings of the circle will be held the first and third Tuesday mornings.

MUSICAL PROGRAM FOR JAYHAWKERS

Dr. Ed. M. Hiner will favor the Jayhawkers with his delightful cornet solos Thursday evening the 8th in the social reunion at Victory Post hall, 327 1/2 South Hill street, Los Angeles. Also Mrs. Hiner will render her wonderful vocal numbers and there will be community songs led by Mr. Brubaker. Roll call of the counties, refreshments and dancing will be other attractions. All the Jayhawkers are cordially invited to join in the jolly rally and to meet the old friends.

TROPICO LADIES' AID TO MEET TOMORROW

The Ladies' Aid of the Tropico Presbyterian church will hold their regular monthly meeting on Thursday, November 8, at the church parlors. At that time final arrangements will be made for the bazaar and chicken pie supper which is to be held on November 16.

EDITORIALS BY THE PEOPLE

Publisher Daily Press:

Appropos of the Bible, or rather New Testament translation, now being printed in your paper:

I have been a student of English literature for a good many years and I have yet to find a book that even approaches the King James version of the Bible, Old and New Testaments, in beauty of expression, terseness and simplicity of language. It contains more pure English—simple Anglo-Saxon words—than any other book. To compare it with most of the modern translations with their long, drawn-out words and feeble expression, is to relegate the latter to the waste basket.

If people do not read the King James version, it is because they do not want to, and for the same reason they will skip the column having this new translation. One must have some leaning towards serious things, to be interested in reading the Bible. The New Testament, as well as all the Bible, must be studied to be understood.

There are fine helps for those who do not read the Greek and Hebrew. Of these, I have found the "Expositors Bible" about the best. I presume this set of books is in the Glendale public library—if not it ought to be.

I find the announcement of a "Bible Conference" to be held next spring at the First Presbyterian church, Dr. Evans of Chicago will be the leader. Every person in the Glendale who wishes truly to understand the Bible and to get a fine method of study, should attend this "conference" if possible. I have never heard a finer teacher of the Bible than Dr. Evans.

Very sincerely yours,
Anna M. Baker.

LETTER CARRIERS BAND ALL READY FOR BENEFIT

The Letter Carriers' band are all ready for the benefit.

The band has all arrangements made and every thing is set for the benefit entertainment and dance to be given this coming Saturday night.

The Emerson School of Self Expression is to put on a three-act comedy, "Her Honor the Mayor." Glendale officials will do well to see this play and find out what is in store for them.

Eastmaster Jackson is to give one of his incomparable solos and several specialty acts will complete the bill.

This is the first benefit to be staged by this band and the public is asked to support it. There is no reason why Glendale, "the fastest growing city" cannot have a Letter Carriers' band. There is plenty of talent in the local postoffice and Mr. McFarland is an able leader.

All that the boys ask is support, morally as well as financially. Any one attending this performance will receive his money's worth and more.

When the letter carrier stops at your door tomorrow, step out and get a couple of tickets. Let's Go!

PLAN ORGANIZING DADS' AUXILIARY BROADWAY SCHOOL

To the Fathers of Broadway School District, Greeting:

When you stop to think of it, there really should be no dividing line between father, mother and the children in any phase of the children's life.

It is true, perhaps, the mother takes more care of and pays more attention to the boy or girl simply because she is with them the most. But, on the other hand, just because father's business takes up the greater portion of his time, it is no excuse for his neglecting to keep the vital problems which confront his children before him to an extent where he may, through experience, guard them to the best of his ability. The child of today is confronted with a thousand and one problems and because of the inability to analyze these situations, many times is led astray. A closer relationship on the father's part would eliminate 80 per cent of this getting into difficulties, according to Judge Reeves, late justice of the juvenile court of Los Angeles county.

To promote every father's interest and to produce immediate results through the co-operation of all the Broadway fathers, we cordially invite you to be present next Friday night, November 9, at 8 o'clock sharp, at the home of Mr. R. M. Ferguson, 529 Porter street.

At this "get-together" meeting, we plan to put over a fathers' auxiliary worthy of Broadway school. You may have a number of valuable suggestions for improving both the educational and social sphere of Broadway school life. Others may suggest some idea which would prove valuable to you in your home education plans. This illustrates why you are needed at these meetings. We both benefit and it takes very little time to produce far-reaching results.

Kindly put forth an additional effort to be with us at this time. We know you will be well paid for the time spent and we plan to have a social evening at the same time, so that it really is worth while to come out just to get acquainted with the other fellow's father.

Earnestly yours,
Fathers' Auxiliary Committee,
Broadway P. T. Association.

Very sincerely yours,
Anna M. Baker.

BASIS FOR PERMANENT FRIENDSHIP

The prompt relief sent from this country to Japan after the destruction there by earthquake, was not a matter of policy at all. It was in response to an impulse wholly altruistic. So quickly was aid despatched that it reached the suffering populace before local Japanese authorities had devised measures to care for the helpless. The first shelter tent set up belonged to the American army. After representatives of this country had done all they could, they had the tact to withdraw quickly. Perhaps this was appreciated as deeply as their coming had been. At any rate there is a new feeling in Japan towards the United States, and it is to the utmost friendly. The Japanese have expressed their appreciation in every manner in their power. The retiring American minister was showered with honors. From Japanese of every social class were received expressions of gratitude, and assurances of lasting amity. All this, coming from people between whom and the United States, there had long been delicate questions, the attempted adjustment of which might easily have led to mutually hostile attitudes, was a remarkable showing of the potency of kindness. A generous act had been performed without thought of payment, but payment was immediate, and of high value.

It is probable that the Japanese see American character in a new light. By this light they may discern that while the races are different in many basic qualities, so that intimate contact could not lead to a blending, and might cause friction and confusion, there need be no prejudice, and no savor of hatred between them.

ORIGIN OF LIFE

A scientist, returning after long research in Mongolia, expressed the opinion that the beginnings of human life will be found in the Valley of the Jewels in that far country. Of course, there will be dissent on the part of the number insistent that no evolutionary process enters into the explanation. As to the mere layman, with open mind, read to accept the truth as it comes within the comprehension of his senses, he is not prepared to say anything. The scientists found plenty of evidences of life far different from any now flourishing on this globe. How much nearer, if any, this places them to the discovery of life's beginnings, is something not to be set down in definite terms. But it is all very interesting.

In the specimens procured are eggs of the dinosaur, said to be approximately 10,000,000 years old. Of course a few million years one way or the other, do not count for much when antiquity yields eggs for the puzzle of the modern understanding. Probably the average reader was unaware that even when it used this globe as a habitat, the dinosaur laid eggs. He had failed to appreciate that, partaking both of the character of the reptile and the bird, it had a right to lay eggs in either role. In the collection, is the skeleton of a baluchitherium, concerning which details are lacking, but that must be very impressive to have earned such a title. Also the bones of a rhinoceros that had been twenty-four feet long, twelve feet high at the shoulder, and carried its head on a neck of the style affected by the still prevalent giraffe.

As said before, this is highly interesting, and it must be regarded as instructive, but just what it teaches of the beginnings of human life will have to be explained by savants capable of deep thinking. Meanwhile, it may be said that to meet a twenty-four foot rhinoceros in the bone, is far more satisfactory than to meet the same creature in the flesh.

SOVIET GOLD

It is said that large sums of soviet gold have been sent into this country. The purpose of the shipments is not given as that of meeting the requirements of legitimate traffic.

The first impulse upon realization that the soviets had gold and to spare, would be to suggest that they distribute it in such manner as to relieve the rest of the world from the necessity of supplying the native Russian with the bread of charity. Were it to be applied to promotion of industries at home, to manufactures, farming, transportation, the verdict would be that the soviets were acting wisely and well.

According to report the gold is to be devoted to winning recognition from the United States. There is something sinister in the suggested use. What is the gold designed to purchase? If public opinion, that is not for sale. If senatorial eloquence, that is something that loses effectiveness at the least suspicion that it has a price.

Not long ago an American supporter of the bolshevik regime caused a number of members of congress to visit Russia. That this was part of a plan to glorify the Lenin regime no thoughtful observer of the farcial tour for an instant doubted. The visitors were feted by the ruling powers, shown what it was desired for them to see; kept blind to the vivid truth, deaf to all cries of distress. Now they are regarded as won over to the soviet cause. It cannot be therefore, that any part of the gold is for them.

If Russia ever shall be recognized by the United States, it will be after it has become a government and not an oligarchy of tyranny. No amount of gold it may send, and no army of propagandists, will hasten the day. The issue is one of ethics first and business second. Recognition is not for sale.

PROMOTING CULTURE

Every community aspires to be a center of culture. This may not mark the initial stages of its growth, but come later. When progress has been made to a point at which there is time to ponder on less material things of life than corner lots and sewers, arises the ambition to cultivate the finer arts. There will be a society of musicians seeking to establish a musical center. Artists will try to collect others of their kind and to constitute a center, the units of which are devoted to creative work in form and color. Similarly the writers ask to be regarded as a literary center. The effect of all this striving is good. It is possible that some of the centers do not rise to the plane which has been set as the goal, but they move in the right direction.

In relation to the arts the personnel of California is exceedingly well adapted to achievement. Natural conditions draw hither many who in their several fields are recognized as geniuses. That each should gather a following is a matter of course, and so there are various groups devoted to purely cultural development; which is an exceedingly fortunate circumstance. And to such groups the environment offers unprecedented advantages. Some of these are inherent, and some have been provided by the thoughtfulness of citizens of wide vision. In this connection there comes to mind the Huntington Foundation. Often mentioned, and mentioned at length at the time of its establishment, it is an enterprise so vast and so fine as not to be dismissed casually. It is magnificent and permanent, and it means more to the educational prowess and repute of this region than may be calculated. Concerning it Sir Joseph Duveen, known everywhere as an art expert, said but recently: "There is no collection of English paintings equal to that Mr. Huntington has formed. There is nothing in the world that can rival it, while the Foundation he has established for the public, the library, the paintings and the grounds, form a gift that is unequalled in all history."

The whole of California has a right to thrill with pride and gratitude at this tribute.

THE FOOLISH DEAD

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

It's odd what foolish things we allow the dead to do.

Small wonder, when we read the wills of the defunct, that most of the "messages" that come from the spirit world are silly and ineffective.

As soon as people see death in the offing they generally get ready to make the lives of the living as miserable as possible by leaving property with every conceivable ridiculous condition tied to it.

And the law lets the will of the dead stand and control the fates of the living.

The latest death spasm of record is that of an uncle who left his young nephew in Colorado $62,000 on condition that he be married within a year.

The year will be up within ten days and the young man must either marry some woman whom he does not want and later get a divorce and divide the legacy with his erstwhile wife or do without the money.

The conditions are unjust, anti-social and absurd, but a dead man made them and so they have to stand.

Why the uncle wanted to make his nephew miserable by such a will does not appear, nor is the reason material. The dead man has put his nephew in a quandary that compels him to commit violence against his own nature and against some innocent woman, unless within a year from the date of the shuffling off of the testator the young man shall have been fortunate enough to find the girl he loves.

Wills of that kind involve and complicate social relations, which are, as heaven and the courts will witness, complicated enough already and the validity given them by our laws and public sympathy permit the dying to impose tyrannical conditions on those who are unable, because the dead are beyond reasoning with, to defend themselves.

To force a man to marry within a certain time or stand an altitudinous fine for not so doing is to place before him a temptation to make a loveless marriage, which will all too likely bring him ultimately into divorce court.

If somebody wants to write a book proving conclusively that the dead are poor advisers for the living, he will find inexhaustible material if he will but consult a number of the wills on record.

Money in the hands of the living gives power enough; the will to power should not be extended to a point where the dead can through it make wretched the living. What good does it do a dead man to impose his will on a vital young member of society? Deathbed satisfaction should not be bought at the cost of those who remain alive to shape the future and carry on the work of the world.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

It must be a terrible thing to be compelled to live up to a family tradition. That's one thing I've been spared. I'm threatened with ear-ache now and then, and no Christian martyr ever suffered more for his faith than I have for candy, and if I give my appetite free rein I begin to look like a ten-cent balloon. One of the red ones. But I have no family traditions. Where we came from they set spring guns in the parks. That is why none of our folks have ever cared for woodlands. We're a prairie people.

"My grandfather, you know, was Colonel Heatherly Mallow," said a man holding a very prominent place in public life ten minutes after I met him. Colonel Heatherly Mallow in his day had been a famous wit and an even more famous conversationalist. Even those who hated him because of his wit allowed that he could talk the birds off the bushes. His son was a wit, too, and a good talker. The grandson feels it his bounded duty to follow in the family footsteps. He is working hard at the job of being a wit and a famous conversationalist. Some months later I mentioned that I had met young Heatherly Mallow. Every one laughed.

"Getting to be a confounded bore," every one said. "Talks all the time. Forever pulling some fevered witicism or galloping in with a line of brick anecdotes."

Come to think of it, that's the way he impresses me after the first few minutes. But after all, I had called on business. I hadn't figured on a music hall performance. The only thing he failed to deliver was a trick cyclist and a pony ballet under a bright light. Yet he is a very able man indeed. His reports on various topics are considered classics. But he talks too much. About 90 per cent or 95 per cent too much.

It was all Grandpa Mallow's fault. Perhaps the young fellow may be silent by nature. But he is forced to live up to the tradition.

THE LISTENING POST

The absent minded man walked along the highway.
Looking here and there.
Up at the sky.

JAMES W. BOWEN

Then he watched a cloud float by in the heavens.

And his brow wrinkled.

There was an expression of sadness on his face.

Something disturbed him.

After a time he walked along with slow step.

Looking up, looking down, looking ahead.

Wondering.

Wondering and seemingly unsatisfied.

Little children passed him by.

Smiled at him.

And he smiled back in a half-hearted way.

Smiled and studied their faces as they passed.

And again came the look of wonder.

Somehow nothing appeared as he thought it should appear.

The clouds were not light and airy as he had often seen them.

The flowers seemed dull and without bright color.

The trees were shadowed.

It was a bright day and yet the day seemed dull and gloomy.

Something was the matter.

He was unable to say just what.

But something had robbed the flowers of their brightness and color.

The sky of its clear blue.

The foliage of its rich greenery.

A friend met him.

Noticed his expression of wonderment and unhappiness.

Asked what was the matter.

And was told that something had happened to make the day less beautiful.

For the sky was dull.

The flowers colorless.

The trees misted.

Even the faces of little children looked dark and unsmiling.

And the friend of the absent minded man smiled.

Reached forward and removed something from the eyes of the puzzled man.

Smoked glasses.

Through which the man had been looking.

Having forgotten their presence on his nose.

And now all the sky was blue.

The flowers bright and colorful.

The trees green and beautiful.

Nature smiling and glad.

"You were looking at the world through dark glasses," observed his friend.

"So I was," replied the absent minded man.

"How many do the same thing and lose its beauty?"

Songs of the Poets

Wordsworth—By James Kenneth Stephen

Two voices are there: one of the deep;
It learns the storm cloud's thunderous melody.
Now roars, now murmurs with the changing sea,
Now bird-like pipes, now closes soft in sleep;
And one is of an old half-witted sheep
Which bleats articulate monotony.
And indicates that two and one are three.
That grass is green, lakes damp and mountains steep:

And Wordsworth, both are thine: at certain times,
Forth from the heart of thy melodious rhymes
The form and pressure of high thoughts will burst;

At other times—good Lord! I'd rather be Quite unacquainted with the A, B, C
Than write such hopeless rubbish as thy worst.

THE MIND OF SHAW

By DR. FRANK CRANE

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW is not a freak. He is picturesque, but he is not a public entertainer, meaning that he does not say sharp things merely by way of kicking up his heels to attract attention.

The striking thing about him is that he has a mind which sees clear through to the bottom of things. He thinks. By thinking, I mean that he does not juggle catch phrases and parade sleek old traditions. The quality of his thought is indicated in his statement that "men are not averse to new ideas: on the contrary, they are too greedy and credulous in pursuit of them; but nothing is rarer in nature than a man who, on accepting a new idea, proceeds to overhaul his old ideas and see how many of them must be scrapped to make logical room for the new corner."

His mind is hospitable. That is, it is open to new ideas, and when he lets a new idea in he does not force it to conform to the other ideas he already has. He says, for instance: "Men are born to a belief in a flat earth, with a flat ceiling and heaven on the first floor. They are converted to a belief that the earth is a ball spinning on its axis and flying through boundless space and are proud of this advance in scientific culture, but they go on believing in the flat ceiling and the first floor just as if nothing had happened in their minds."

He appreciates that there is quite as much stupidity and fog in reform as there is in conservatism. Himself an Irishman, he realizes what might be called the reactionism of revolutionists. "Ireland," he says, "is at this moment a regular rag and bottle shop of superseded ideas and superstitions. There are formidable vested interests in our huge national stock of junk and bludge, glowing with the phosphorescence of romance."

Like every other clear thinker, he is fully alive to the danger of the nation myth. He declares: "Nationalism must now be added to their fuse pile of superstitions. We are now citizens of the world; and the man who divides the race into elect Irishmen and reprobate foreign devils (especially Englishmen) had better live on the Blasket, where he can admire himself without much disturbance."

He sees also the fallacy of that sort of national independence which is really but a patriotic provincialism. There can be no national independence for Ireland any more than there can be national independence for the United States, the French Republic or the British Empire. Indeed, no nation can become entirely independent except by becoming so insignificant that her independence would not matter."

He describes in a swift and Merry sentence the nature of a strike:

"Now the strike means starving on your enemy's doorstep. It may terrify an Oriental if he happens to believe that your death will bring the wrath of Allah on him; but the modern capitalist snaps his fingers at Allah; he simply calls the police to remove your body to the mortuary."

He perceives the nonsense of speaking of the Laboring Class.

"Labor for everybody, and idleness for nobody, rich or poor, is the only policy that can make a country economically sound and its people physically and morally healthy. In a truly Free State nobody can be free until he has earned his keep and nobody can be considered a gentleman if he is mean enough to stop at that."

In fine, it gives one a distinct stimulus to his faith in the human race that such minds as that of Shaw are living and functioning.

(Copyright, 1923, by Dr. Frank Crane)

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

An automobile driver has been convicted of involuntary manslaughter, a fact that may check the blitheome fashion of running machines over people.

The mere fact that everybody wants him to resign means nothing to a Los Angeles police commissioner.

Moonshine whisky poured into Los Angeles gutters burned the soles of observers. But think what their stomachs escaped.

Appears the caption, in a newspaper, at that "Corinne Griffith May Wed or She May Not." Truly a remarkable situation.

Just now seems a bad time for Germany to admit an ex-crown prince subject to delusions of grandeur.

A bunch of prohibition agents at a roadhouse may be said to represent zero in popularity.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

THE UNSPANKED

[Buffalo Express].

A kindergarten course in character carving is needed in this unspanked generation, to prevent the petting parties of flappers, said a woman speaker before the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, in convention at Erie. When children go wrong, said the speaker, it is wholly the fault of the parent.

"In fact," she said, "in some places they are paraphrasing the scripture and saying, 'when my father and mother forsake me the boy scouts will take me up.'"

Schools certainly are lacking in the teaching of courtesy, but even if a character carving course were installed success would be doubtful without the co-operation of parents. Perhaps parents expect too much of teachers.

Even a policeman, with the power of the law behind him, cannot handle some people without the use of a nightstick. How can the average teacher, shorn of the power of punishment, accomplish what a parent cannot—or will not?

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

China is not prone to ask favors, but it is asking one now. It deserves the acquiescence of all, for it does not ask the impossible nor even the unreasonable. Its sole request is that it be left alone.

Whatever may have been the blessings of China in the past, that of being let alone seldom has been among them. Not only did the whole world, with one honorable exception, manifest eagerness to butt in, but once in, it grabbed such area as seemed desirable, and squatted thereon with an air of ownership. Through long practise perfection had been attained in the role. If almost deceived even the Chinese, while the interlopers preened themselves as though their unwelcome and unnecessary presence had been a sign of virtue.

China is an old civilization. It is beginning to awaken, and, in a common way of expressing it, to be "getting onto itself." The people not only wish to work out their own destinies, but regard their native genius as equal to the task. At least they have the moral right to work out their plan. The various powers that indicate a willingness to take over Chinese railroads, and otherwise relieve the natives of responsibility, would be doing something else were they attending to their own business.

There has been some turmoil in China to be sure. So there has elsewhere. Before any nation offers to assume the guardianship of that country, a most reluctant ward, it ought to be able to show that no turmoil at home disturbs its peace of mind.

Some of the film producing companies announced that they would cut down their activities and greatly lessen their output. For an instant the outlook seemed gloomy.

Almost immediately other producers made known that they were about to enlarge their plants at the cost of millions of dollars, and were going ahead on a greater scale than ever. So the clouds rolled away.

The Irish who kicked up a bobby in New York while Lloyd George was there, may have thought they were accomplishing something besides being impolite. The process of reasoning is sometimes hard to follow when it takes place in the minds of others.

A Pasadena man and woman were sentenced to ten days in jail for scattering poison with intent to kill dogs. Then the court spoiled all the good effect by suspending sentence.

Anybody mean enough to poison dogs is an unsafe person to be at large. It is a cowardly, cruel and unnecessary act. Ten days in jail could hardly have been enough to eliminate the virus from the soul of such an individual.

De La Monte and De Coe are the soft and winsome names of two Los Angeles police commissioners of whom the public has a desire to get rid.

The situation seems to call for the qualities more likely to be possessed by some Jack Smith and Bill Jones.

To some people armistice day does not seem anything to get excited about.

If the career of the world since the signing of the paper conveys any lesson, it is that the armistice will be set down in history as one of the greatest errors of civilization.

Trees are cut down for various reasons most of which are bad. To many, a tree appears as something to be destroyed. It seems to affect them as the presence of a deer does the hunter. "It's alive! let's kill it!" is the maxim of both.

To cut down a tree, excepting for good cause, is a waston waste of beauty. In an organized community, where all citizens have equal interest in the comeliness of the landscape, and the shade along the streets, sacrifice of trees should not be permitted until the owner has stated the ground for his intention, and proved it to be good ground.

Bandits should not forget that there is honor among thieves, and that when they proceed on any different assumption, they are going against a settled belief, and the impact is likely to hurt them.

Two bandits recently robbed a bank. One denied the other a fair division. The one thus cheated squealed so loudly that the police got him, and he was so mad by that time that he told where his pal was to be found.

But perhaps it is difficult for a bandit to be a gentleman.

It is remarked that Frank Kellogg will not "wear panties at the English court."

Knee breeches are not "panties." Doubtless the regiment of Mr. Kellogg on any occasion will accord with the demands as interpreted by a man of good taste.

By experimenting upon the glands of a rat a doctor induced the creature to grow to three times the normal size.

Perhaps the worthy doctor would be wise to switch to some other subject. The rat at normal size is quite large enough. Were the doctor to put the reverse on the activity of the gland, thus causing the rodent to shrink and ultimately to fade from view, the outcome would be more satisfactory.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

THE BEAN STORY

Father did not want me to grow up to be lazy and he used to tell me stories about work and working people to remind me. He used to tell me the bean story and chuckle over what happened to the lazy woman who was sent to plant the beans.

"There was," he would begin, with solemn face and dancing eyes, "a very lazy woman in the village. She was so lazy that she used to sit under a tree and wait for the figs to drop into her mouth sooner than go to the trouble of picking them."

"One day her father and brothers were planting beans and they had great fields of them to sow and little help for the sowing."

"We'll make Nita plant some," said they, and one brother, the very youngest and smallest because he could be spared the easiest, was sent to bring her.

"Tell her," said the father, who was very old and very wise. "Tell her that I am setting aside her share of the family fortune and to come quickly or the others may get it."

"You may be sure that the message brought her very quickly for she was greedy as well as lazy. When she got to the field all she saw was a great sack of beans."

"That is your share," said her father. "Get them into the ground quickly or they will spoil and the worms will eat them."

"Very much disgusted she sat down beside the beans and shook a handful into her apron. Very slowly she began dropping them into the ground. 'Dear me,' said she, 'at this rate I shall be an old woman before I get my fortune planted and I shall never be married at all, but will have to work all my life,' and the tears rolled down her cheeks at the thought of such misfortune."

"At the end of the row stood a sturdy tree and she sat down on a stone to rest in the shade. A thought came to her. 'I'll plant all the horrid things under this stone and they'll never know the difference.' And that's just what she did."

"That night when Nita the lazy one had gone to sleep she was awakened by some one pulling her nose. On her pillow sat a bean with two long sprouts for arms and two short thick ones for legs and his whole self for a mouth pulling for dear life."

"Suddenly the whole room was full of pale beans with scrawny arms and thick legs and yawning mouths. They rained themselves down on her calling. 'Come out of this! Come out and take our brothers from under the stone.'"

"And they pulled her out of bed to the stone and they made her turn over the stone and out popped the beans. Each one of them took a hold of a hair of her head and pulled and pulled it out to a fine thread and rode to his place in the bean field. Then they tied a knot in the hair and sent it back for the next bean until they were all planted."

"It must have been true, for when she looked under the stone the next morning there were no beans there and her hair was full of knots."

SINGER SEWING MACHINE AGENCY IS GROWING FAST

The Singer Sewing Machine Co. at 223 East Broadway is indeed a growing concern. The proprietor, J. F. Armstrong, and his daughter, Miss June Armstrong, started business on a small basis a little more than a year ago. They were soon forced to move to their present larger quarters and are now looking for a place still larger, due to the steady increase in business.

In addition to handling new Singers, Mr. Armstrong carries a full line of excellent used machines of various makes, taken in trade for new ones.

A complete rental department is maintained whereby for a small sum machines may be rented by the day, week or month. Repair service on all makes is offered and a complete line of needles and other accessories is carried.

Mr. Armstrong sees a great future for his business in Glendale, and is looking forward to ward bright prospects. He now claims to have one of the "fastest growing businesses" in the "fastest growing city."

A young fellow, the son of quite a wealthy man, was engaged in some clerical capacity by a friend of his father in order to try and make something of him. He was, however, shiftless to the last degree, and nothing he said could be relied upon.

One day his employer called him into his private office and gave him a sound lecture. He dwelt chiefly upon his prevarication, and wound up by saying: "You know, James, that you are always lying." "Sir," said James. "I would have you know that I am a gentleman!" "There you go again," said his employer.

LESLIE KING IS GREAT HUMPO IN "IF WINTER COMES"

The success of nearly every dramatic masterpiece is calculated by the performance of the star, the character around which the entire story revolves, the one to whom all things happen. Yet, if it were not for the capable support of a cast made up of "bits," many of the greatest dramas known to the art would not occupy their reverent position.

In the screen version of "If Winter Comes," produced by William Fox, Percy Marmont plays that central character, Mark Sabre, and plays it in a manner that will command the respect of every critic worthy of the title. But his sterling performance should not detract from the noteworthy work of lesser members of the cast. One of these is Leslie King as "Humpty," the lawyer, who tries to fasten the crime of murder upon Sabre.

King, as the crafty, surly hunchback, trying by every means to ensnare his victim in a net of incriminating circumstantial evidence, reminds one of nothing so much as a leopard, toying around his prey, tearing his heart out bit by bit.

"If Winter Comes" will be shown at the Glendale Theatre again today.

"If Winter Comes" is the one-time-in-a-hundred film you can't make any mistake going to see. You will if you remain away.—GUY PRICE, Herald.

"If Winter Comes" is a translation so pulsing with life, so natural, so vivid, so glowingly human, that one feels that one knows at last what the screen is for.—GRACE KINGSLEY, The Times.

If that fellow's an escaped convict or a lunatic, anyway he's a ridin' man!

Well, here we are in New Jersey and he's aheadin' for the New York ferry; if we can make the same boat, we'll find out who it is. Fine! pull up a little more—Well, I'll be—why it's Wally Van, "The Driving Fool," and you can see it all at the Gateway today.

The comedy cinema actor stopped a man he knew. "Look here," he began. "I understand you said last night that I had no sense of humor. A remark of that kind, made public, in the presence of other people, is very damaging to a man in my position, and—"

"Hold one," interrupted the other. "I never said you had no sense of humor. What I said was that you had no sense of honor."

"Ah," beamed the actor. "I thought there must be some mistake. I felt certain you would never run down a pal behind his back."
